About me

As a husband and dad of 2 I enjoy experiencing the world through my children's eye's. Although I have very little spare time, when I do get time to myself I enjoy maintaining and repairing my vehicles, as well as building large, complex lego and lego technic sets.

I am a friendly and approachable individual who finds it easy to fit into new teams. Throughout my time in the army I learned alot from my peers and I would like to believe I am wise beyond my years. My army background has enabled me to learn and implement skills quickly and to a high degree.

I enjoy learning from people's experiences and I am not scared to ask questions or for help when needed. I would ultimately enjoy working for a company who would let me share my skills, qualities and experiences.
